w roku akademickim 2024/2025

Konwersatoria realizowane w semestrze zimowym

Nazwa przedmiotu w języku angielskim: The concept of Good Living in different cultures

Nazwa przedmiotu w języku polskim: Koncepcja dobrego życia w różnych kulturach

Prowadzący/-a: Maria Cecilia Zsogon

Forma zajęć: konwersatorium

Liczba godzin: 30

Liczba ECTS: 2

Opis: The seminar aims to discuss relevant pedagogical perspectives from and common discourse on good living in different regions. For instance: the proposal of the “good living” (elBuenVivir), paradigm from the indigenous peoples who seek happiness through the respect to cultural and environmental diversity, as well as equality and solidarity. This traditional knowledge had also political and pedagogical implications. In our societies based on consumerism and technological acceleration, this perspective can bring a more holistic and meaningful approach, based on the respect for nature and for all living beings. We will use critical pedagogy which promotes the development of critical and reflective individuals, emphasizing social responsibility and awareness of the cultural situation. We will also reflect what good living means to us and our social networks.

Warunki zaliczenia (ZO) To pass weekly presence and active participation are required. Students may expect small weekly tasks for self-study, and a final essay or research report.

Opis: Course content based on the research findings from the EU-funded project EDUCATORE:

End of Disaster: Undoing Crisis. Active Tutors Open to Reflective Education.

The course is aimed to enhance skills and knowledge in the area of building well-being and resilience in a professional environment, especially in care and education.

The course tutor will take you on a journey to self-discovery, and help you enhance your coping mechanisms, stress-elevating strategies and relaxation techniques. You will become familiar with the outcomes of studies into well-being and resilience in education. You will learn how to foster the key components for well-being and resilience for yourself and for those around you, particularly children and youth you may work with, as well as other beneficiaries of your professional career path. The course is an excellent opportunity to discuss scientific knowledge and the state of arts in the subject area as well as provides practical tools and paths to put this knowledge into practice.

Subjects:

- Introduction to self-care and self-awareness.
- Research findings from wellbeing and resilience studies.
- Toolkit for well-being and resilience in the care sector and education.
- Practical methods to enhance personal well-being and resilience and how to cascade it to the students/pupils/children/social work clients.

Practising:

- self-awareness “Get to know yourself first before you can get to know others” (Janusz Korczak 1912)

- reflectivity

-empathy

-relaxation techniques and coping mechanisms

Encouraging:

- self-care
